ABOUT US

UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA, ACCORDING TO THE SPIRIT OF ITS FOUNDERS,
HAS THE OBJECTIVE OF ENSURING THE PRESENCE IN THE UNIVERSITY
AND THE CULTURAL WORLD OF PEOPLE COMMITTED TO FACE AND RESOLVE, IN THE LIGHT OF THE CHRISTIAN MESSAGE AND MORAL PRINCIPLES, THE PROBLEMS OF SOCIETY AND CULTURE.

Articles of Association of Università Cattolica,
Article 1

EVERYTHING WE ARE IS IN OUR VALUES

We believe in the person. Because we educate women and men, before professionals, so that everyone can express their full potential.

We believe in the freedom of thought. So that the human and professional baggage that we give our students can always be an ally for them in their future.

We believe in society so that everything we give to each student becomes a resource for society, which we want to imbue with professionalism but above all with humanity and trust.

Above all, we believe in the future with sensible optimism, because building the future is a commitment, but what makes it possible is to build it together, cultivating everyone's inclinations.

WHY UNIVERSITA' CATTOLICA?

Because here everyone can feel free to express their potential.

Because here each path is individual, as is the sensitivity of each one.

Because here everyone is put in a position to give their best.

Because here every person counts and is part of a community to be cultivated with care.

Because our history is made up of our past, but above all of today's commitment to planning an unprecedented tomorrow.

ARTS AND PHILOSOPHY

at Università Cattolica

IDEAS, HISTORY, VALUES

At Università Cattolica, history, philosophy, classical and modern literature, archaeology and art history are not limited to the study of the past, but they also entrust to the present and the future the great humanistic tradition, which flows into the Faculty of Arts and Philosophy and has its roots in the system of university studies of the Middle Ages, from which the European culture was born. In line with its own identity, in addition to its commitment to the solid and successful training of future researchers and teachers, the faculty combines this tradition with new knowledge: from this meeting, new cultural results are born, with interesting outcomes also for professional outlets. Sectors such as publishing and the promotion of cultural heritage show, for example, that humanities and the new frontiers of technology and communication are no longer distant, parallel worlds. In order to prepare people who are also able to face such big challenges, we need a broad and solid education, a broad culture and a historical perspective. Specific skills can be developed in more professional courses such as specialising master's, by nurturing curiosity and interest during the course of studies or internships, or by learning them directly in the field once you enter the world of work.

The Faculty of Arts and Philosophy at Università Cattolica faces this concern with two certainties:

- with the great rigour that comes from a long history of humanistic studies and great schools of thought: from archaeology to papyrology, from glottology to philology, from philosophy to history and the history of literature, to name but a few. This tradition of studies is mainly reflected in the degree programmes in Humanities, with the following profiles: Classical Literature, Philological-Literary, Historical/Artistic and Archaeological, Publishing, Communication and Entertainment;

- with a series of profiles that already seek to combine cultural knowledge and skills aimed at new professions, such as the degree programme in Disciplines of the Arts, Media and Performing Arts (DAMS), which has three profiles (DAMS for art, DAMS for media and DAMS for performing arts) and the degree programme in Tourism and Territorial Development.

HUMANITIES

The undergraduate degree programme in Humanities provides a highly versatile cultural and professional profile in all areas where strong argumentative and discursive skills are required, particularly in the fields of teaching, publishing, cultural heritage conservation, communication and entertainment. To this end, the degree programme aims to provide students with solid basic education and training in the traditionally fundamental areas of humanistic culture (philological-literary, linguistic, historical, historical-cultural, artistic), appropriately combined with new knowledge in the areas of communication and contemporary expression, in the perspective of a constant dialogue between the ancient and the modern, and a fruitful interaction between different disciplines and methodologies. All students enrolled in the course will receive a common, cross-curricular education, particularly in areas related to the basic disciplines, mainly concentrated in the first year of study. However, in order to avoid generality and to allow an initial in-depth study and the acquisition of more robust tools of investigation in one of the above-mentioned areas, the course is divided into different profiles, which allow the student to structure a homogeneous, coherent and rational study programme. This differentiation within the three-year cycle will be progressive, significantly marked in the final year. The following competences, knowledge and skills are specific training objectives qualifying the degree programme in Humanities:

- a solid basic training, both methodological and historical, in linguistic, philological and literary studies;
- an essential knowledge of literary, linguistic, historical, geographical and artistic culture of the ancient, medieval, modern and contemporary ages, with direct knowledge of original texts and documents;
- the ability to carry out professional tasks at various levels in public and private bodies in the fields of cultural services, journalism, publishing and cultural institutions of various kinds.

THE STRUCTURE OF THE PROGRAMME

This programme is divided into the following profiles:

- Classical Literature
- Publishing, Communication and Entertainment
- Philological - Literary
- Historical, Artistic and Archaeological

Graduates may enter the graduate degree programme in Modern Philology (class LM-14, Modern Philology) activated at the Brescia campus according to the conditions provided for by the specific admission procedures annually deliberated. During the two study cycles it will be possible to acquire the “24 ECTS” necessary for admission to the competition for the one-year course of initial training and probationary period.

NOTE THEOLOGY COURSES

The study plan provides for the attendance of Theology courses, in order to offer a motivated, reasoned and organic knowledge of the Catholic faith. The programme is delivered over the three years. Classes take place 3 hours per week for 12 weeks, and the course is divided into the following themes:

- I year: Fundamental Issues: Christological Faith and Holy Scripture;
- II Year: Matters of Theological Anthropology and Ecclesiology;
- III Year: Theological Questions of Christian Ethics and Morals.

STUDY PLANS

The study plans indicated below may be subject to change; official reference ones will be presented in the specific Faculty Guide.

HUMANITIES

CREDITS

In order to obtain the degree, 180 credits (ects) are required: normally about 60 credit per year are acquired by means of assessment tests for both courses and supplementary teaching activities (exercises, laboratories, etc.). Each course is given a certain number of credits (ECTS), the for all students and a grade (expressed in a mark out of 30) which varies according to the level of preparation.

A 6-credit course includes 30 hours of lectures; a 12-credit course includes 60 hours. Courses can be delivered on a six-month or annual basis, as indicated in the timetables on the Faculty's notice board.

The final examination mark is expressed in a mark out of one hundred and ten.

PROFILE CLASSICAL LITERATURE

Through balanced choices within the options allowed by the profile, it is possible for students with an interest in the ancient world to build a complete and well-rounded classical profile, which allows them to corroborate their linguistic skills in Greek and Latin, lay a solid foundation in the literary, historical and archaeological fields and orient themselves among the many disciplines related to the ancient world, starting to identify lines of interest that can be profitably explored later.

⁽¹⁾ It is possible to choose Glottology instead of Latin Literature I if, following assessment of your level of knowledge of Latin (by means of a placement test), you are assigned to the Latin Language course (A level). In this case, the student will include the course in Latin Literature I in the study plan for the second year. For this purpose, please contact the professor/lecturer of the Latin Literature I course.

⁽²⁾ The Epigraphy and Roman Antiquities course can only be taken by those who envisage the inclusion of the 6-credit Roman History course in their study plan.

PROFILE PUBLISHING, COMMUNICATION AND ENTERTAINMENT

Among the competence profiles that the student will have the opportunity to outline by constructing his or her study plan, the one in Publishing, Communication and Entertainment allows, thanks to targeted options among the characterising, related and supplementary disciplines and the free-choice courses, to acquire a specific preparation in the fields of publishing, journalism, media, cinema, theatre and entertainment, grafting it onto a humanistic education alone. Students wishing to continue their studies after graduation, in addition to the graduate degree in Modern Philology, which is the natural outlet for all Humanities graduates, will also find other avenues open to them: from first-level professional graduate programmes in one of the areas specified above, to master's degrees in the corresponding fields.

In this case, the student will include the course in Latin Literature I in the study plan for the second year. For this purpose, please contact the professor/lecturer of the Latin Literature I course.

⁽²⁾ The course of Epigraphy and Roman Antiquities and the course of Exegesis of Historical Medieval Sources can only be chosen by those who plan to include the 6-credit Roman History course and the 6-credit Medieval History course in their study plan, respectively.

PROFILE PHILOLOGICAL-LITERARY

The Philological-Literary profile allows a wide choice of disciplines and highly personalised study plans. The basic knowledge acquired during the programme can be put to use in many activities in which a broad competence in the humanities is required, starting with teaching. The wide offer of courses, however, makes it possible to plan coherent choices that respond both to the cultural orientation of the student and to the specific preparation for choices other than teaching. The philological-literary profile is also the natural route towards the graduate degree programme in Modern Philology and opens up to further professional opportunities it offers, including scientific research.

For this purpose, please contact the professor/lecturer of the Latin Literature I course.

⁽²⁾ Medieval History can only be chosen by those who plan to include the 6-credit Roman History course and the 6-credit Medieval History course in their study plan, respectively.

PROFILE HISTORICAL, ARTISTIC AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL

The Historical, Artistic and Archaeology profile enables the student to develop, on a solid literary and historical basis, skills in the field of cultural heritage with in-depth study of the archaeological cultures of antiquity and the Middle Ages and the methodologies for approaching these topics. The profile allows professional opportunities in the field of protection and development of the archaeological and historical-artistic heritage, the possibility to access the graduate degree programme in Modern Philology, aimed at teaching, or other specific courses of study of second level.

DISCIPLINES OF ARTS, MEDIA AND PERFORMING ARTS (DAMS)

The degree programme in Disciplines of the Arts, Media and Performing Arts (DAMS) trains professionals in culture, communication and the performing arts. It combines three educational components: a basic humanistic culture; a specific historical and theoretical background in the field of theatrical and audio-visual performance, multimedia communication, artistic creation and organisation; a direct knowledge of professional techniques in the fields of artistic management, performance, media communication in all its forms, with particular regard to journalism.

The lessons are complemented by practical workshops led by professionals. Willing students will have access to internships in companies and institutions, which are advertised on a regular basis; or they may be selected for workshops organised by the University together with partner institutions. Preparation is integrated by good language skills (two levels of English, one basic and one advanced, and a film-making course taught in specialist English) and professional skills.

THE STRUCTURE OF THE PROGRAMME

The DAMS programme is divided into three coherently constructed profiles:

- DAMS for Arts;
- DAMS for Media;
- DAMS for Performing Arts.

The DAMS programme (Class L-3, Disciplines of the Figurative Arts, Music, Performing Arts and Fashion) allows access, at the Brescia campus, to the graduate degree programme in Digital Content Management for Media, Business and Cultural Heritage (Class LM-19) and the graduate degree in Modern Philology (Class LM-14). The programme also allows access to graduate degree programmes in the fields of Communication and Entertainment at the Milan campus of Università Cattolica according to the conditions laid down by the specific admission procedures annually deliberated.

DAMS IS INSPIRED BY THE 'UNIVERSITY-WORKSHOP'

ODEL AND IS FULL OF PRACTICAL WORKSHOPS

PLEASE NOTE

THEOLOGY COURSES

The study plan of each course includes attendance of theology courses, in order to provide a motivated, reasoned and organic knowledge of the Catholic faith. The programme is delivered over the three years. Classes take place 3 hours per week for 12, weeks and the course is divided into the following themes:

- I year: Fundamental issues: Christological Faith and Holy Scripture
- II year: Matters of Theological Anthropology and Ecclesiology;
- III year: Theological Questions of Christian Ethics and Morals.

STUDY PLAN

The study plans published below may be subject to change; official reference study plans will be presented in the specific Faculty Guide.

CREDITS

In order to obtain an undergraduate degree, 180 credits (ECTS) are required, which are acquired. Each exam is given a certain number of credits, the same for all students, and a grade (expressed in a mark out of 30) which varies according to the level of preparation.

A 6-credit course includes 30 hours of lectures; a 12-credit course includes 60 hours. Courses can be given on a six-month or annual basis, as indicated in the timetables on the Faculty's notice board.

A characteristic feature of the DAMS is the supplementary teaching offer of professional activities, in which students can actually work under the guidance of professionals. A 2-credit workshop involves 30 hours of shared work, in addition to personal or group study.

The final vote is expressed in a mark out of one hundred and ten. The final examination can be theoretical or practical. In the first case, the test consists of an evaluative discussion of a research, documentation, criticism or project paper in the fields of interest. In the case of the practical test, students will discuss a theatrical, audio-visual, radio, multimedia or artistic production; the organisation of an artistic or museum event or of communication in the field of fashion and design; the production of a dossier of articles or a journalistic investigation, carried out in the press or as a television or radio report; the conception and implementation (at least in part) of a project for the cultural enhancement of the territory will be discussed in an evaluative sense.

PROFILE DAMS FOR ARTS

The profile DAMS for arts aims to train professionals who are able to design and create cultural and artistic events, exhibitions, museum education initiatives and related publishing products (catalogues, critical essays, etc.). This profile builds a foundation of historical and theoretical studies related to the world of contemporary and modern art, photography, architecture and design; special attention is paid to the relations between visual and performing arts (music and entertainment).

On this basis, theoretical-practical courses and workshops are set up in order to convey a series of practical skills (including managerial skills), which are indispensable for accessing the professions of artistic organisation.

Final examination	6

⁽¹⁾ The two courses run in alternating years, and students may alternately attend one in the second year and the other in the third year.

⁽²⁾ It is advisable to include the course of Organisation of Publishing and Media Companies (with workshop on Personal branding).

PROFILE DAMS FOR MEDIA

The profile DAMS for media and entertainment aims to train professionals to design and produce audio-visual and multimedia products for both traditional media (cinema, radio, television) and new media. It is also intended to provide a useful training basis for entering the education professions and for all possible media platforms (press, radio, television, web, press offices and public relations).

The profile builds a foundation of historical and theoretical studies dedicated to the world of film, television, new digital media and information, with a focus on the cultural aspects of the journalistic profession.

On this basis, theoretical-practical courses and workshops are set up to provide a series of practical skills (including managerial skills) that are indispensable to access the communication and information professions. A specialised course in film-making (Fundamentals of Directing) delivered in English is provided (Honors Courses). The profile opens up to postgraduate training courses for the journalistic professions (schools recognised by the National Order of Journalists). As regards access to the profession of journalist, we recommend that you consult the website

WORKSHOP

The workshop is both an educational and a professional activity and is led by a lecturer/professor from the DAMS degree programme. In terms of content and commitment it can be equivalent to an internship or work placement (150 hours equivalent to 6 ECTS).

Admission to the workshop is by means of a selection on the basis of the candidate's CV and an interview testing the degree of motivation and aptitude.

Workshops already planned for the a.y. 2021/2023:

- Journalistic editorial work and multimedia production (Voce del Popolo and Ellisse media agency)

TOURIST SCIENCES AND TERRITORY DEVELOPMENT

The degree programme in Tourism Sciences and Territory Development, which belongs to the L-15 Class, Tourism Sciences, aims to train professionals specialised in the development, management and development of the tourism sector in its various forms, and in particular in the cultural one, with the aim of ensuring the sustainable management and the sustainable, responsible and innovative use of the Italian cultural and territorial heritage.

Students with this preparation can find their place both in private companies of various sizes and different territorial scales (such as, for example, tour operators, accommodation and leisure facilities, e-commerce companies dedicated to the travel sector) and in public and private bodies (Regions, Provinces, Destination Management Organisations, Local Action Groups).

COURSE STRUCTURE

The undergraduate programme, although it has professional characteristics, thanks to its pragmatic character and is oriented to the professional development obtained with internships also abroad, prepares for the in-depth profiles of the graduate degree programmes in Design and Management of Tourism Systems (LM 49) and in Information and Publishing Systems (LM 19). To this end, the training provided by the degree programme is based on certain areas of knowledge which - when considered in an integrated manner - provide future professionals with the keys to interpreting and managing the dynamics of a complex economic sector such as tourism:

- the areas of linguistic knowledge;
- the areas of legal and economic knowledge;
- the areas of cultural knowledge (territory, society, art, communication).

NOTE

THEOLOGY COURSES

The study plan for each course includes attendance of Theology courses, to offer a motivated reasoned and organic knowledge of the Catholic faith. The programme is delivered over the three years. Classes take place 3 hours per week for 12 weeks and the course is divided into the following themes:

- I year: Fundamental issues: Christological Faith and Scripture;
- II year: Issues of Theological Anthropology and Ecclesiology;
- III year: Theological Questions of Christian Ethics and Morals

The specificity of the preparation provided by the programme is linked to the achievement of competences, knowledge and skills within the following objectives:

- a) focus on the structure and economics of businesses, with reference to the problems of communication and quality of supply in the current context of a globalised market and high competitiveness between the major national and global tourism regions;
- b) specific attention to the development of territorial resources, understood as a factor of attractiveness of tourist flows to be declined on the basis of the changing needs of consumption by the market, linked both to the specific physical and landscape features of the natural environment, and to the cultural heritage, both material and immaterial, matured over the centuries through the evolution of local identities;
- c) adequate preparation in communication tools, from languages oriented to tourism communication, to technological and IT tools for processing data related to the tourism phenomenon, in economic and territorial interpretation, in communication to the market and to service users. Graduates will be able to use effectively, in written and oral form, at least two modern languages of the European continent, in addition to Italian, used in the specific field of tourism and will be able to use the main computer and telematic communication digital.

The course consists of a single profile.

STUDY PLANS

The study plans published here may be subject to change; official reference ones will be presented in the specific Faculty Guide.

The study plan foresees a balanced distribution of the courses related to the three areas of scientific knowledge (linguistic, economic-legal, cultural) in order to build a complete and articulated profile, which allows to acquire adequate skills in modern languages with a specific focus on tourism, to provide a solid foundation in technical, economic and regulatory areas, to have an adequate knowledge of the characteristics of the cultural heritage that, with particular reference to our country, is the main potential attraction of domestic and foreign tourist flows.

CREDITS

In order to obtain the degree, 180 credits (ECTS) are required, of which approximately 60 per year are acquired by means of assessment tests, both for courses and for supplementary teaching activities (exercises, laboratories, etc.). Each course is given a certain number of credits (ECTS), the same for all students, and a grade (expressed in a mark out of 30) which varies according to the level of preparation. Each credit includes 5 hours of face-to-face teaching within the reference course. Courses can be given on a six-month or annual basis, as indicated in the timetables on the Faculty's notice board.

The final mark is expressed in a grade out of one hundred and ten.

(¹) The Faculty, in order to promote a wide range of language training, allows a Spanish language course (6 ECTS) to be included among the electives, promoted by the University Language Service - Servizio Linguistico Ateneo (SeLdA)..

(^{}) The second semester of the third year of the course is left free to take part in the internship and to prepare the final dissertation; therefore, the study of the various courses, including foreign languages is compacted in the first semester.

TEACHING

In addition to traditional lectures, the teaching methods include seminars, exercises, workshops and internships, meetings with entrepreneurs, managers and professionals in the sector and other forms of teaching aimed at developing analytical skills. The interim assessment gives priority to the examination in the form of an oral interview or written test but it may also include specific methods depending on the characteristics of the supplementary activities and practical exercises.

The course of study includes the constant use of online platforms, where students can find all the necessary teaching material and all further references and contacts for further study of the contents and for exam preparation.

WORKSHOPS

Workshops are an essential part of the offer of the degree programme and aim to provide specific competences on the development of territorial resources and the acquisition of practical knowledge in the management of tourism enterprises, also through the presentation of case studies and problem solving exercises. The workshops and practical exercises also provide advanced and specialised skills in the various sectors of resource development and in the organisation of tourism enterprises, including start-ups.

AFTER GRADUATIONS

The graduate in Tourism Science and Territory Development can find a place in the following occupational fields:

REGISTRATION

Registration is enrolment in the first year of university. With it you receive a registration number, which is required when registering for examinations and using the services of the university. The Italian term is immatricolazione, hence the term matricola to describe first-year students.

DEGREE CLASSES

Course classes, including degree classes (established by Article 4 of the Decree of the Ministry of Universities and Scientific and Technological Research of 3 November 1999, No. 509 and confirmed by Article 4 of Ministry of Education, University and Research Decree No. 270 of 22 October 2004), are groupings of university degree courses of the same level that share certain educational objectives and award degrees with identical legal value. To date, there are 49 degree classes, 97 master's degree classes and 8 single-cycle master's degree classes. With Ministerial Decree no. 446/2020, the Ministry of Universities and Research established three new professionally-oriented degree classes, which provide for the inclusion of at least 48 ECTS credits for workshop and internship activities, aimed at better placing graduates in the world of work. Individual universities may activate one or more degrees in each class, choose their names and decide on their curricula, subject to certain constraints. All degrees that belong to a class have the same legal value; this is why public competition notices refer to classes and not to degrees.

UNIVERSITY TERMINOLOGY

What does it mean...

ATHENAEUM

The term 'athenaeum' (ateneo in Italian) derives from the goddess Athena and therefore, by extension, the temple dedicated to her, where rhetoricians and poets recited their poems. Today it is synonymous with university.

THREE-YEAR DEGREE

The three-year degree, also known as a first-level degree, is obtained by acquiring 180 ECTS credits over three academic years. It provides the student with an adequate command of general scientific methods and content and guarantees the acquisition of specific professional knowledge. At the end of the course one obtains the title of dottore. A secondary school diploma is required for admission onto three-year degree courses.

ECTS CREDITS

ECTS credits are a method used in universities to measure the quantity of learning required of a student. Each university examination is associated with a certain number of ECTS credits, which are intended to reflect the amount of effort required; traditionally, 1 ECTS credits is equal to 25 hours of work (either personal study or attendance in workshops or lectures). Each course is assigned a certain number of credits, the same for all students, and a mark (out of 30) that varies according to the level of preparation. ECTS credits may be acquired not only by taking examinations, but also through extra-curricular activities recognised by the Faculty.

FACULTY

Università Cattolica is divided into Faculties, i.e. organisational structures that comprise one or more degree courses. They have the primary task of organising the academic activities provided for by law, the Statute and the regulations. They cooperate with the departments in organising the research doctorates.

SINGLE-CYCLE MASTER'S DEGREE

Certain types of degree last five or six years. Specifically, these are degrees in Architecture and Building Engineering, Conservation and Restoration of Cultural Heritage, Pharmacy and Industrial Pharmacy, Law, Veterinary Medicine, Primary Education Sciences (5-year duration), Medicine and Surgery and Dentistry and Dental Prosthetics (6-year duration). In order to be eligible for the single-cycle master's degree, students require a secondary school diploma.

DEGREE PROGRAMME

The degree programme is the set of courses, broken down for each year of the course, which the student must attend, taking the relevant examinations, in order to obtain the degree.

ACADEMIC YEAR/A.Y.

The academic year begins with the start of classes (end of September-beginning of October) and ends in September of the following year.

LECTURES

Lectures run from September/October to May/June for YEAR-LONG courses. Courses whose number of hours and duration are equivalent to half of an annual course, are called SEMESTER-LONG courses. The two semesters begin in September/October and/or February and examinations are held at the end of each semester. SEMESTRALISED courses are courses whose teaching hours are equivalent to an annual course but concentrated in the time frame of a semester course. It still counts as an annual course.

EXAM DATE AND EXAM SESSION

An exam date is the date on which an examination can be taken. Each faculty decides independently, in accordance with the University's Academic Regulations, how many exam dates to schedule during the year and in which months. The period during which lectures are suspended and examinations can be taken is called a 'session'. Each academic year has three or four examination sessions (depending on the faculty).

INTERNSHIP

Internships are educational activities that bring students into contact with the world of work. Some degree courses include a compulsory internship or work experience period within organisations or companies that have an agreement with the university, to be carried out preferably during the final year. Students may also participate in internships and work experience outside the curricular course, both in Italy and abroad.

DISSERTATION OR FINAL EXAMINATION

This is a written assignment in which the student develops a personal project or research project, usually on a topic related to a subject included in his/her degree programme. It is carried out under the guidance of a lecturer. The overall assessment, which also takes into account the results of individual examinations, is given as a mark out of 110.

MASTER'S DEGREE

Master's degrees, also called second-level degrees, last two years (120 ECTS credits) and require students to already have a degree. It provides advanced theoretical and methodological training for performing highly specialist activities in specific fields. At the end of the course, graduates are awarded the title of dottore magistrale.

FIRST AND SECOND-LEVEL UNIVERSITY MASTER'S DEGREES

University master's degrees are professional training courses. They include first-level university master's degrees, which can be accessed after a three-year, and second-level university master's degrees, which can be accessed after a master's degree. They can last one or more years and at the end there is a final examination.

NURTURE

YOUR

STUDYING AND LIVING THE UNIVERSITY

Entering the University means facing a world of courses and exams to choose, of professors/lecturers and colleagues to meet and know, of times to learn how to manage. Taking this path means starting to build one's future, following one's passions and interests, in a period of life full of dreams, projects, energy. Università Cattolica is the fertile ground where everyone can cultivate their talents. To this end, we provide tools and services to face with awareness and serenity all the challenges and create opportunities to get to know each other, to deepen knowledge, to grow from a human and cultural point of view.

STUDY SUPPORT SERVICES

Online services, books, tools and spaces

- iCatt

The portal that allows you to manage your university career and to have access to all personalised information on services, courses and didactics. For smartphones and tablets there is the iCatt Mobile app, which can be downloaded free of charge from both the Apple Store and Google Play.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST TO STUDY AT UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA

The tuition fee is determined on the basis of family income. Every year, approximately 3,000 students, based on merit and financial conditions, are exempt from paying university fees, while 4,000 gain access to additional financial benefits. Students with a certified disability equal to or greater than 66% and students with a recognised disability pursuant to art. 3, subsection 1 or subsection 2 of Law no. 104 of 5 February 1992 are entitled to total exemption from enrolment fees and university contributions, paying €100 upon registration in the first year and then upon enrolment onto each subsequent academic year. In order to obtain the exemption, the aforementioned students must present original, valid documentation to the Services for the Integration of Students with Disabilities and SLD of the relevant campus. There are also concessionary rates for off-site students resident in the colleges of the Università Cattolica.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND FINANCIAL AID

- Economic benefits

Scholarships, reimbursement of tuition fees, monetary aids, admission and re-admission to university colleges at reduced rates, access to the catering service at lower prices. These are the formulas proposed to reduce the costs of study according to income and merit requirements.

The online platform MyEDUCatt is a direct thread that allows you to submit your application and check the processing status of the file at any time.

Info: educatt.it/agevolazioni

- Other benefits

The benefits are available to students committed to study and work, students enrolled and belonging to the same household at the same time, students with a certified disability or in whose household there are family members with CERTIFIED disability. In addition, special benefits are provided for those who, although already in the minimum income bracket, are in particularly difficult and serious economic conditions and are unable to obtain the scholarship. There are also various competitions organised by private bodies, foundations, associations or organisations. The list is updated and available online.
